

September 15, 2009

The Black Monk

Theater

This wildly popular production, which played to sold out crowds in the spring will kick off the Undermain's 26th season. David Rabe brings Anton Chekhov's spiritual mystery to vivid life. The Black Monk tells the story of a brilliant but haunted young scholar, Andrei Vasilich Kovrin. Exhausted to the point of madness by his studies, Kovrin returns to the garden estate of his childhood benefactor Yegot Pesotsky and his daughter Tanya. Kovrin tells Tanya the legend of the black monk whose image has been reflected in mirages for a thousand years and who will soon return in the flesh holding the key either to enlightenment or total devastation.

Where: Undermain Theatre

Source: <http://www.trumba.com/calendars/sponsor-art-calendar>

Price: $15, $25

When: 7:30pm Wed 9.09.09 with -1 other showtimes 9.09.09-10.03.09

Undermain Theatre

3200 Main St
Dallas, TX 75226-1562

Phone: (214) 747-5515

Neighborhood: Northeast Dallas

Parking Details: Free lot across the street